

RACE ACROSS ITALY PARTICIPANT'S LIABILITY FORM

Acceptance of risks and assumption of responsibility

Each Participant is aware that Ultracycling is an extremely dangerous sporting discipline, as it takes place on open roads and is confronted with extreme weather conditions (rain, extreme heat or cold, snow), sleep deprivation, and road surface conditions that are not always perfect. The participant is fully aware that his or her safety depends solely on his or her ability (and in the case of the category with Support also on that of his or her crew) to be able to handle and overcome the various physical, psychological, technical and mechanical problems that will arise.

The participant is aware and accepts the fact that his or her registration, once confirmed, is irrevocable (see conditions of reimbursement) and that all the risks involved in this event, even the most extreme, are accepted by him or her, assuming full responsibility for any consequences arising therefrom. This means that he/she therefore accepts to participate in this type of event at his/her own risk. The participant accepts, with full knowledge of the facts and possible consequences, to release the organiser from all extra-contractual and/or contractual liability for any damage he/she may suffer as a result of the event and its organisation, thereby waiving any recourse against the organiser. This constitutes a substantial element of the subscriber's acceptance to participate in the RACE ACROSS ITALY, an Ultracycling sporting event. In view of the distance and the manner in which it is held, according to the Italian Traffic Regulations the event is classified as non-competitive and therefore takes place on roads open to traffic, where participants are obliged to comply with all applicable rules and regulations.

The Rules published on the event website are an integral part of the Liability Form . All members, cyclists and crew members, hereby confirm that they have read, accepted and understood it. The regulations can be downloaded from the website: www.raceacrossitaly.com

The organiser ASD BIKE & DREAMS declines any responsibility for any damage to things or persons caused by the cyclists and/or crew members, is not responsible for any kind of accident of the participants or crew members, for damage/loss of material of the same and the insurance coverage (for accidents, illness theft, civil liability) is the sole responsibility of each member. The organiser also has no liability for any negligence on the part of third parties. Volunteers and those supporting the event are also excluded from liability claims. Liability, accident, injury or theft insurance for athletes and crew members are the sole responsibility of each participant and his crew members.

The organiser cannot be held liable for damage caused by weather or other unforeseeable events that could not be foreseen. Should the event be stopped due to external phenomena, such as difficult weather conditions or exceptional accidents, no reimbursement of the entry fee will be given. The decision to stop the event is the sole responsibility of the organiser.
